

I am not sure an investigation into the Jackson/Timberlake issue during 1/2 time at the Super Bowl is needed, but I do believe there should be a serious look into the halftime shows for the future. Who decided that the public (the largest audience in t.v.) cares for the shows that occur. I do not on a regular basis watch these shows, but do believe these MTV shows belong on MTV and NOT at the Super Bowl.

I do watch some programming on MTV but I choose what I watch. The viewers were watching THE football game, and never should have been subjected to what took place.

Heavy fines mean nothing to the people who have this kind of money, but I do believe a good look and changes to the future halftime shows need to be done immediately.